It is assumed that the revision of the draft of January 13, 1948, "for the sake of clarity" was not intended to alter the substance of the earlier draft other than to include provisions to meet the Army's objections, which is accomplished in para 1d. Accordingly the following amendments are required in order that the March 3 version conform to the substance of the January 13 version, which the Department approved without change.

1. In para 1 b., line 3, delete the word "or" and insert at that point the word "and."

2. In para 1 c., line 1, insert the word "such" before the word "exploitation."

3. In para 2 b., line 3, delete the word "or" and insert at that point the word "and."

*How about it?
Was OO ungrammatical
or did they purposely
make these changes or did State have to get its innings vs. Army?*
